Lane Erwin
Director, Organizational Effectiveness
American Society of Clinical Oncology \(ASCO\)

Lane joined the American Society of Clinical Oncology (ASCO) in 2011 at the start of the organization's R.O.W.E. journey, which has fully tapped into her 30 plus years of experience in systems thinking, organizational design, workforce development, team dynamics and creative problem solving. As a Director of Organizational Effectiveness, she has led employee engagement, performance and learning initiatives in partnership with staff and leaders across ASCO. After an initial start of conducting benchmarking and competitive analyses for Fortune 100/500 companies, Lane has focused her career on supporting mission-driven, nonprofit organizations which has included working at National Public Radio and with the Support Centers of America as a management consultant for grassroots and regional organizations. In addition to her day job, Lane has served on multiple boards of directors (FACETS, Arlington Chapter of American Red Cross, Mental Health Association in Alexandria) where, as board chair, she led strategic planning and CEO transitions. Her current "side gig" has been to launch and grow a neighborhood farmers market in collaboration with passionate volunteer community leaders and local farmers.
